

Ms. Pauline Chan

Ms. Pauline Chan is Director of Scientific Programs for the Southeast Asian branch of the International Life Sciences Institute (ILSI), a global non-profit organization that seeks to improve public health through the advancement of science in the areas of nutrition and food safety. Ms. Chan has extensive experience in developing scientific programs and facilitating dialogue between scientists, government regulators and industry to address regional and international issues in nutrition, food safety and health. A registered dietitian (RD) with the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics (previously known as American Dietetics Association), Ms. Chan received her B.S. in Chemistry from the Chinese University of Hong Kong, and her M.S. in Nutrition and Dietetics from New York University, USA.