Lorraine Brennan, PhD,
Professor, University College Dublin

Professor Brennan is a professor of Human Nutrition in University College Dublin, Ireland. Professor Brennan is at the forefront of nutrition and metabolomics research, running the Nutrition, Biomarkers, and Health research, obtaining considerable national and European research funding and publishing numerous peer-reviewed articles. Recent funding successes have included a European Research Council (ERC) Consolidator Award. Professor Brennan led UCD’s inputs into EU Joint Programme Initiatives (JPIs) in the areas of ‘A Healthy Diet for a Healthy Life’ and ‘Biomarkers for Nutrition and Health’. She is a member of the EU Food2030 Expert group. She has been Director of the European Nutrigenomics Organisation since 2014, and is currently Secretary of the Irish Nutrition Society. Professor Brennan has published over 150 research articles.